Joseph Mercantile Co.

(Incorporated)

The dove crop will be good this season.

There were 5,000 people at the Danville fair on the first day.

The union services will be held in the Christian church Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Hush will preach the sermon.

It is said that a day in Jupiter is equal to about 50,000 days on earth. The residents must feel all the time like they were in Danville.

Chief of Police Herron was notified of arrest at Stanford of a man with stolen articles of wearing apparel. If you've lost anything, see him.

Please take an occasional glance at the yellow label on your copy of The Record. Uncle Sam keeps a knife up his sleeve for delinquent subscribers.

Bro. Tindler writes us that there will be no services at the Christian church Sunday morning. He is meeting with great success in his meeting at Clintonville.

Miss Gertrude Nave, of Nicholasville, formerly of Garrard county, died at St. Joseph's Hospital, in Lexington, and buried in the former city last Thursday.

Both Harrodsburg and Danville fairs were well attended, notwithstanding the fact that the towns are next door neighbors and the dates were the same.

Rev. C. C. Brown is conducting a very interesting meeting at New Antioch. Services are held every night, and the meeting will continue until Sunday night, possibly longer.

The Lancaster base ball club is arranging for a week's trip through southern Kentucky, playing games each day. They will likely complete plans and leave Sunday-week.

The Greenbaum distillery, at Midway, burned together with 47,000 barrels of whisky. Loss estimated at $1,500,000, on whisky, while the property loss is about $150,000.

Steve Lewis, the hustling carpenter, has just completed a big tobacco barn for Mr. Sam Sutton and has taken contract to erect another large barn for Mr. Tindler, on Lexington pike.

Tax-Payers' Notice.

Your taxes are now due. The taxes are what keeps the city going. It takes money to keep the streets in repair and the affairs of the city in good condition. Just the same as it takes money to conduct your business, I would be glad if all who can possibly do so to come forward and settle their taxes at once.

L. E. Herron,
City Marshal.

The L and N will run another $1.75 excursion to Cincinnati, Sunday, leaving Lancaster at five o'clock, a. m.

Read the list of candidates announce meetings, and pick your favorites. These people want you to know they are candidates and that they will appreciate your support.

Several Lancaster people have the automobile fever, and are figuring on buying machines. The autos have come to stay, and the horses may as well become reconciled to them.

Judge E. W. Harris has the thanks of the editor for a basket of the largest and best tomatoes we ever saw. He is the boss gardener and knows just how to raise the best of everything.

The Nicholasville News says, "The largest corn raiser in the United States is David Rankin, of Missouri." This statement will be doubted by many of our poor sufferers, especially in damp weather.

No hemp has been cut yet, but farmers are now securing hands. About the usual amount will be raised in Garrard this year. Had not the price of seed been so high, we are told a much larger acreage would have been put in.

The Lancaster fair directors are figuring on erecting a large number of box stalls and an up-to-date amphitheatre. As a question of stable room has been the only drawback, it is clear that the association is on the right track in making these improvements.

Many Thanks.

Preachersville cor. to Stanford Journal:—The Record at Lancaster has one of the cleanest and neatest printing offices we were ever in, and the kind welcome one gets there makes him feel like calling again.

Eighth Wonder Of The World.

Lancaster has a young lady, good looking, too, who has not chewed gum for more than two years and declares she will never chew again. This paper never reveals a secret, so interested parties must do their own looking.

A Nice Improvement.

Judge Ford, representing the Fiscal Court, has had a large trough placed by Park fence in the Public Square, the town to furnish the water. This will keep a supply of fresh water for stock, which will be greatly appreciated by the public. Haselden Bros. did the work.

Schooler.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. M. A. Schooler died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Adams, in this city, last week. Mrs. Schooler is survived by three daughters, Mesdames Jack Adams, Mattie Ronte and Willis Adams. She was a good, Christian woman, and her death causes much sorrow among her acquaintances. Funeral services were conducted by Eld. F. M. Tindler, the interment taking place at the Lancaster Cemetery.

For Ten Cents.

Larue Herald:—That preacher asked a question that should have set the world to thinking when he wanted to know the other day how much good would be accomplished for Christianity should the same amount of money, the same degree of interest and the similar effort be exerted to promote the cause of Christ that is being spent on the election of the president. Take a day off and figure on it. There will be more money used between now and the coming of the November election than has been spent for religion in years—and all to show that one "Billie" is better than another "Billie" while some of the voters would decide either way for ten cents.

The Merchant Who Wins.

A newspaper with 1,000 subscribers has 5,000 readers. A merchant who puts out 1,000 handbills possibly gets 400 people to read them, that is if the boy who distributes them doesn't chuck them under the side walk. The handbills cost as much as a column advertisement in the home paper. All the women and girls and most of the men and boys read the home paper and the advertisements. Result—the merchant who uses the paper has 5,000 or more readers to each 1,000 of the handbill readers. There is no estimating the amount of business that advertising brings to a merchant, but the right kind of newspaper advertising always brings results.

TO GET BUSINESS.

Organization, the Only Way to Bring Business, Upphold the Community and Get Results.

The recent visit of the Louisville "Herald of Homes" to Lancaster, has, we are delighted to say, had the effect of putting our local business men to thinking of the all important matter of organization and pulling together for the maintenance and advancement of the business interests of our city. If our business men only knew of the great benefit derived from organization in other towns, they would not hesitate for one moment to organize a commercial club and put forth every effort to derive the many benefits which can be obtained from Lancaster's resources. Winchester, which is now the best business town in Central Kentucky—size considered—owes its remarkable growth to a live, wide-awake commercial club. That city is a fair example of what can be obtained, as it is right under the nose of the city of Lexington, and not withstanding this fact, her business men are prosperous, and the merchants enjoy splendid trade the year around. Paris is another city under the same conditions. We can name a dozen other of the leading cities recently pulled out of sleepy methods and put right up on the top rung of the ladder simply by organizing a commercial club composed of hustling citizens who want to see their town prosper and are not too infernal stingy to devote into their purses and put up a few dollars to defray expense of bringing the resources and advantages of their towns before the people.

There is no town better located for good business than is our own Lancaster, and, as we have stated in these columns thousands of times, all needed is concerted action by the business men to put Lancaster in the forefront of Kentucky towns. When one sees hemp, timber and countless other raw materials hauled away, made into finished goods and returned here to be sold back to the people, he must wonder why this is done. While there is not enough money in Lancaster to build factories, yet if we had a good, live commercial club, steps could be taken to induce minded people of other localities to invest in such enterprises. Any man with a thimbleful or sense knows that a hemp factory would prove a veritable gold mine. And the same with other such institutions, but the trouble is no one will take the lead in offering inducements, and, we must say, if any fellow begins to talk up these matters, there are some quacks who throw cold water, and immediately tighten their purse strings and sit idly on their pants, in some cases seeming to look upon a promoter as if doing him a personal favor to listen to him. This is far from the right spirit, and until this is done away with and our people pull together, our town will never advance one step from its present position. As stated above, there is only one way to get together, and that is by the organization of a commercial club. If half the work was done along this line as is in dickering around in politics, our town would soon be in the forefront. Lancaster business men, think this over carefully—wake up and let's all get busy and perfect an organization to do things. The Record would suggest that the mayor call a meeting of citizens, at some convenient time, and let's see what can be done.

Free Lecture.

Dr. Joe Munday will lecture to men only, in the court house tonight, Thursday, Aug. 13th. No one under sixteen will be admitted.

Bowling Green (Ky.) Daily News says: "Dr. Munday is nothing if not interesting, and his ability to entertain an audience has no bounds."

Liberty (Ky.) Herald says: "Dr. Munday has a national reputation as a lecturer and refined, learned gentleman of exquisite taste and impressive personalities. As an orator and entertainer, he is without an equal on the American platform. He holds his audience spell bound from start to finish. At one moment he convulses everyone with laughter and with almost the rapidity of an electric flash he switches off on the side track of pathos and opens a fountain of tears which gushes a crystal stream until wiped away for another laugh."

The dove crop will be extra large this season. That's what the hunters say, so take it for what it's worth.

There is a big crowd at Dripping Springs and Proprietor Rothwell is enjoying the banner season.

Consistency, Oh, Consistency! The other day, we heard a certain business (?) man grumbling about there being so little money circulating in Lancaster. A bystander remarked that the same fellow ordered his flour from a Louisville firm, bought his family groceries at wholesale and "went in" with others to order his winter coal by the car-load. Of course such rosters have a right to buy goods where they choose, but The Record would suggest that people who send their money away from home for articles sold right here in Lancaster keep their heads closed about scarcity of money in the capital of Garrard county. Such cattle are a thorn in the side of any community.

What Are You Doing?

It should be kept in mind that the outside world must judge a community, a town or city by the results seen on the surface. If the people of a place do not show their faith in their home town by their works, where will a stranger look for the points that must determine his action, in seeking a location for factory or home? It does not take a stranger long to detect a dead town. Indifferent merchants, carelessness in the appearance of the streets and alleys, and a general indolence will appear to the outsider much sooner than these things will be detected by the resident. And when the stranger finds these things he will quickly take his departure from the place of dry bones and bodies moving without spirit. When merchants lay down, customers are pretty sure to follow suit, and thence there is a dead town and no mistake. Under such conditions it takes a pretty strong blast from the business bugle to call the dead to life. It is a mighty word plan for each one to examine himself and see if he is doing all that duty and a desire for progress requires.

Newspapers Did It.

The management of the Lancaster Fair attribute the tremendous crowds to the fact that the show was advertised in the newspapers in this section of the state, and in this belief they are correct. A newspaper goes right into the homes, where a bill cannot go, and it's the only way to advertise.

Lancaster, Ky., August 14, 1908.

It is now in order for the fellow who is never known to have an opinion on any subject to get himself interviewed on the political situation. It is somewhat surprising how some very ordinary individual will become a person of great importance under the stimulating influence of the political quill driver. There are fellows, whose opinion of a dog would not be given serious consideration, but who sweep into the political firmament with all the sublimity of a comet of the first magnitude when the political interviewer goes out after a story. It is always a safe plan to use several grains of salt when reading the story about the lifelong political patriot who has suddenly become the error of his way and has announced as a recruit of the other side.

One of the prominent mail order houses of Chicago has issued an announcement that it will discontinue the grocery and retail drug branch of its business. It sets out the reason for this action, the Federal pure food law. This house tacitly admits that it has been selling the people who have been patronizing it, impure food and drugs. If it has been selling groceries and drugs that were not up to the standard, is it not reasonable to presume that the other goods it sells are not up to the standard? In a word, if it would cheat in groceries and drugs will it not also cheat its customers in all other lines? This is a question that is worth the consideration of every customer of the mail order house. There need be no such question raised when purchases are made from the home dealer.

A number of scientific fellows are deeply engaged in discussion regarding the use of rouge. Some hold that it is decidedly injurious to the female face. Now, as a matter of fact, it matters not what conclusion these mere men may reach, the woman who thinks that a coat of paint well laid adds to her charms will cast science to the winds and proceed to paint. In all the instances where paint is used it should be kept in mind that beauty is only rouge deep and will not deceive any one. Some one who might be regarded as a near poet has put it this way:

Little dabs of powder,
Little gobs of paint,
Often make the summer girl
Look like what she ain't.

The imagination plays an important part in the matter of climate conditions. Some persons are constantly fussing and fuming about the heat and would be uncomfortably warm in an ice box. It is a pretty good plan for one to pursue the even tenor of his way and pay no attention to the weather. There may be days when it is pretty hot and humbly sweltering, with the mercury up in the nineties, but just remember that it takes hot weather to make the corn grow and that it would be much more uncomfortable to do without a corn crop than it is to sweat a bit.

After all, there may be use for the bumper hay crop of this season. It is reported that recently a young man in settling a breach of promise suit delivered one ton of hay as part payment for the damages he had wrought among the heart cords of his one time charmer. One might understand how hay could save the wounds of a grass widow, but for a maiden fair, certainly it is putting the product of the meadow to a strange use.

Men who are tied to party are nothing more than slaves. It should be repugnant to every man, who lays claim to American citizenship, to have it said of him that he is bound hand and foot to party. Freedom of action is one of the fundamental principles of real suffrage in a representative form of government.

There really should be no trouble in satisfying everybody on the Presidential question this campaign. For instance, there is Bryan, Taft, Debs, Preston, Chalm, Watson and Hilsen, all running for President. An instance where you can take your choice whether you pay your money or not.

Some one remarks that "A woman in a sheath gown may be clothed, but not in her right mind." This is followed by an exchange remarking that a woman so clothed subjects her understanding to much criticism and a vast amount of consideration.

Whether it is hay fever or just an ordinary cold depends on the size of your bank account. If this is large enough to permit a trip to Northern Michigan you have a severe attack of the hay fever, otherwise you will have to do your sneezing at home.

The young lady who beat the fool, who persisted on rocking the boat, with a boat oar until he went over the side of the boat, is entitled not only to the thanks of her suffering sisters but Carnegie should send her a hero medal.

Because a young man becomes a steady caller every Sunday evening should not cause the young lady in the question to think that he is getting serious. During these times of tight towns, he may find all other places closed.

A London physician declares that men prone to baldness should take to nightcaps. This is not intended to cause men to investigate the condition of their hair. Anyway, what would the fellows in the dry territory do?

At the church marriage, in a neighboring town, of a Mr. Wheat to a Miss Harley the organist played "What Shall the Harvest Be" while the audience smiled through the chorus part of the number.

A Wisconsin man has married a deaf and dumb girl worth two millions. Wise guy; she cannot be reminding him of the fact that she furnishes the dough.

Because a Pennsylvania man swallowed the knife with which he was eating pie and is about to die from the effects leads one to remember that eating pie with a knife is a grave offense.

The director's gown is intended for women to whom nature or the makeup milliner has been kind. Let all others cling to their skirts at the crossings.

That the extremes of fashion never meet is fully attested by the summer girl at a bathing resort and the same damsel in the winter ball room.

An exchange says that anybody can fly if he has the money. Oh, no he can't; it is the money that has the wings.

Some girls play the piano for a fellow and others play the fence with him.

I have had 11 years experience with bees and it is surprising how many people are utterly ignorant of these most useful creatures. At this time of year the bees are very sure to begin robbing. This is where the bees of one hive enter some other hive and carry off the honey and tear down the comb. This is a bad condition for an apiary to get into, and is very hard to cure some times. It generally occurs in times of drought or at a time when there is no nectar in the flowers. It is very often brought on by leaving honey exposed, sometimes by trying to feed the bees the wrong way or at the wrong time, and will result from not contracting the entrance to the hives after the honey flow is over. Sometimes one has honey that is unfit to use as it is full of pollen or "bee bread," as it is called, or that the comb is full of brood. It is put out in the bee yard for the bees to "clean up." After they have taken all of the sweets there, then they begin nosing about their weaker neighbors or about a hive with too large an entrance. If one bee ever gets to carry home a load of stolen honey then other bees soon follow suit and lots of bees are killed in the flight which follows. The bees of other hives soon "catch on" by hearing the warlike buzz of the robbing bees and join in the melee. What was once a populous hive will soon be robbed off and its inmates killed or driven off. Prevention is better and far easier than to stop the robbing tendency when once started. We should always contract the entrance to every hive and leave no honey about when there is a scarcity of nectar. This prevents trouble. At a time when there is a good supply of nectar in the flowers and every bee is busy, they will very seldom take any notice of honey put out in the bee yard. When there is a good honey flow and plenty of nectar in the flowers, we may then give the strongest colonies full entrance room. When bees are found to be robbing a colony and the robbed colony is not too far gone, then we close the entrance up so only one or two bees may pass at a time, and place hay, grass or leaves at the entrance and sprinkle with water every ten minutes for an hour. Leave the entrance contracted and the hay or leaves in place for a day or so when all will have quieted down.

Bees sting horses to death. The bee is a very gentle creature, contrary to the general opinion. Despite their gentleness, their wrath may be suddenly raised and then they are changed to fighting imps, which are not lacking in courage, and seem to rejoice in losing their stings, which nearly cause their death. Under no circumstance should a horse be hitched near the beehives as bees seem to have a great dislike to horses. Perhaps, the horse is hitched to a fence, near by is a bee hive, the restless horse jars the fence or something near the hive and the bees soon begin a battle causing a run away. The horse is unable to break loose, perhaps, and the enraged bees continue to sting as long as the horse moves, and when the owner comes to get his horse, he finds him dead with thousands of bees hovering about, frantic in their wish to sting more. Some times a horse is hitched two or three rods or more from a hive and is in a place to interfere with their flight. If it is windy the bees are more apt to cause trouble. We have known at least five horses, stung to death by their being hitched too near the bees. One instance, of which some of your readers will doubtless remember, it was at a picnic at Greenbrier, in the days of Col Slaughter. A good horse, worth $100, was stung to death, before the eyes of hundreds. No one seemed to know what to do, a few tried to beat the bees off with brush, which only made it worse. Excitement caused us to lose our wits and often what we do hinders, instead of helps. If only a few bees kill them and move the horse; if there are hundreds, unthinkingly and rush the horse into a barn or other inclosure and the bees will all leave. Wring large cloths or quilts out of hot or cold water and apply. Renew these cloths often and plenty of them. In no wise try to beat the bees off outside the barn.
